TODAY'S CHICAGO WOMAN

FASHION 2011

UNCOVERED

MARCH 2011
WWW.TCWMAG.COM

LAUREN COBURN
the media room

Lauren Coburn, LLC, designed DreamHome's media room to be a transformable, multi-functional space. After receiving a degree in Interior Architecture from the Art Institute of Chicago, she was hired by Tigerman McCurry Architects and entered the world of high-end design. She started her own firm six years ago, implementing her sleek design aesthetic. The media room reflects this philosophy. "My interiors look very different," she explains, "but have commonalities in terms of clean lines and timeless pieces." The room features an elegant bronze metallic color palette, custom cream silk ottomans, a cream leather sofa and several television screens affixed to rosewood panels that can hide side televisions at the push of a button. The media room encompasses a mix of cutting edge technology with a traditional interior.

SHAWNA DILLON
the kitchen

Shawna Dillon received the perfect pairing when asked to create a kitchen for DreamHome. "I love the happy marriage between cooking and room organization," says Miss Dillon, a 10-year interior designer for Studio Snaidero and a Virginia Tech Interior Design grad. The kitchen features a deep island, lower drop table and multiple seating areas, resulting in a family-friendly space. "Kitchens are like modern day living rooms. They have a luxurious, sophisticated look, yet are extremely functional." Miss Dillon's inspiration for the kitchen holds true to her design principles. "I'm inspired by the dichotomy between contrasting items, such as rough and smooth, masculine and feminine." The DreamHome kitchen reflects this by mixing traditional and contemporary design and combining Snaidero style with a Clean & Fancy Cabinetry partnership. "The kitchen is not just for cooking."